

NO SILENCE on ED VIOLENCE

Nearly half of emergency physicians have been physically assaulted at work, and almost 20 percent of emergency nurses report being physically assaulted within the past two weeks.

This violence doesn't just harm health care professionals:
It interferes with the delivery of patient care.

The Emergency Nurses Association and American College of Emergency Physicians continue to be a leading voice in raising awareness of this longstanding problem and, more importantly, to be champions for changes that support health care professionals and improve their safety. Join us at:
